Besides, using real world resources for teaching and learning in the classroom can make education more meaningful and relevant to our students [5]. The academicians have always been putting their utmost efforts to liberate learning from the constraints of time and place. And, the liberation of learning from the constraints of time and place can be better facilitated mostly through "Mobile Learning". These days mobile devices such as PDAs, phones, and other handheld devices, are used everywhere for doing everything ranging from voice calling to making short message, video chat, listening to audio (Mp3, Mp4, Mpeg), web surfing, shopping, and the like.
