This has made prominent a want, never felt very much before, of technical schools, with their varied courses of training, designed to afford the special facilities needed by such as are aiming to achieve excellence in practical chemistry, mining, engineering, architecture, etc. The same tendency is operative in our colleges, leading students to withdraw their energies from a general course of study to concentrate them upon one more specific. This has already given great practical importance to the question, "What are the proper limitations to this specialty of education?" How far do The purpose of the Australian Journal of Teacher Education is to enhance the quality of teacher education through the publication of research reports, learned points of view and commentaries.
